

OMA and Volaris Announce Five New Routes from San Luis Potosí International Airport

- Five new Volaris-operated routes will begin service in June 2026.
- The expansion strengthens the state's domestic and international connectivity.

Tuesday, February 17, 2025. – Grupo OMA, Volaris, and the Government of the State of San Luis Potosí announced the addition of five new routes to be operated by Volaris from San Luis Potosí International Airport, with service set to begin in June 2026. The new destinations will connect the state with Chicago Midway, Guadalajara, Monterrey, Puebla, and Puerto Vallarta, further strengthening the region's domestic and international connectivity.

With this expansion, Volaris consolidates its position as the airport's leading carrier, offering service to six domestic and four international destinations. The increase in connectivity creates new opportunities for trade, tourism, and passenger mobility, while facilitating stronger links between families, businesses, and commercial partners both within Mexico and abroad.

"These new routes position San Luis Potosí as a strategic hub within our airport network and expand development opportunities for the region," said Ricardo Dueñas, CEO of OMA.

This initiative reflects the positive impact of collaboration among the airline, the state government, and the airport operator for the benefit of the region. Strategic partnerships such as this generate tangible benefits and growth opportunities that contribute to the continued development of San Luis Potosí.
